College of Pharmacy Takes Top Honors at Research Day

The University of Georgia College of Pharmacy’s Department of Clinical and Administrative Pharmacy (CAP) took top honors at the 4th annual UGA Research Day, which featured posters and presentations by graduate students and postdoctoral fellows across the university.

CAP was named Science Department of the Year since its Clinical and Experimental Therapeutics (CET) program presented a total of 11 out of 43 posters and presentations at Research Day.

Sherif Hafez, a second-year CET student, won the best graduate student poster award. His research is conducted under the direction of Adviye Ergul, adjunct CAP professor and professor of medicine at Georgia Health Sciences University. This is the third year in a row that a CET student has won this award.
