White Coat Ceremony Welcomes New Pharmacy Class

The University of Georgia College of Pharmacy welcomed 144 new students into the Class of 2019 with its annual White Coat ceremony. At that event all new students received white lab coats to mark the beginning of their pharmacy careers.

College of Pharmacy Alumni Council president James Holley ('95, '96) was keynote speaker. Pharmacy coordinator Clinton Cain ('74) represented Kroger Pharmacy as sponsor of the event. Alumni Council members Andre Mackey ('88) and John Drew ('93,'95) helped the incoming students receive their white coats.

Of the Class of 2019's 144 members, 66.7 percent are female, 31.9 percent are minorities, 50.7 percent have a bachelor's degree or higher, 45.1 percent previously attended UGA, and 6.9% are out-of-state. The grade point average is 3.43, with an average Pharmacy College Admission Test (PCAT) score in the 80th percentile.
